

Tomorrow, Thursday, June 18th, members from both the Pennsylvania House and Senate will be holding state-wide press conferences calling for a Just Recovery for our Commonwealth.

The COVID-19 pandemic has touched every single community in our state, and we need to address the economic and social fall-out that was created in its wake. SEIU Local 668, as well as many of our coalition partners, has joined with members of the Senate and House to enact a just recovery plan for every resident in our state.

Together with our partners and legislators, we are calling for a Just Recovery Plan that directly addresses:

- making sure that Pennsylvanians returning to work have the resources they need to protect themselves from COVID-19;
- instituting additional small business stimulus packages;
- making sure schools and students have the resources, including internet access, to facilitate proper socially distant learning;
- racial justice and police reforms;
- continuing to ensure that all Pennsylvanians have access to vote so their voices can be heard;
- working towards providing quality housing for every Pennsylvanian, and
- instituting tax fairness initiatives.

Senate and House Democrats will be hosting events in Philadelphia, Allegheny County, Montgomery County, Delaware County, Bucks County, Chester County, Dauphin County, Lehigh County, and in the Northeastern PA region. These events will bring together members of both legislative chambers to discuss the issues that constituents in their regions have brought to them as the major areas that they want to see change and assistance in as we create our recovery from the COVID-19 pandemic. We encourage our members to learn more about the Just Recovery Plan and watch their area press conference if time allows.
